

 The Institute for Science & Interdisciplinary Studies presents

Quality & Quantity:

Population Control and the Survival of Eugenics

BETSY HARTMANN

Director, Population & Development Program

---

Early in the 20th century, eugenics informed repressive policies against immigrants, the poor, and the disabled and had an important impact on the new birth control movement.

- ♦ How are eugenics entwined with fear of overpopulation and the fertility of women of color?
  - ♦ Who leads the assault on immigrants by conservative environmentalists like Garrett Hardin?
  - ♦ Can or should new reproductive technologies make a brave new world of positive eugenics?
  - ♦ And what are the implications for reproductive rights and environmental activists?
-

Tuesday, April 10 at 7:30 pm

East Lecture Hall, FPH - Hampshire College

This lecture is the third in the ISIS spring seminar series titled “Biology and Science Ethics,” co-sponsored by the Population and Development Program, the Civil Liberties and Public Policy Program, the Women’s Center, and the Dean of Faculty at Hampshire College.

For more information contact ISIS at 559-5582

ISIS events are smoke- & fragrance-free to ensure accessibility. Thanks for your consideration.